LIFE SCIENCE INDUSTRY NEWS

In Our Neck Of The Woods....

Texas Global Health Security Innovation Consortium

The Texas Global Health Security Innovation Consortium (TEXGHS) is a consortium organized by The University of Texas at Austin that will coordinate efforts across academia, public sector, and private sector partners to support companies working towards pandemic preparedness and response. TEXGHS aims to spearhead Texas' efforts in developing new technologies and adapting existing technologies that address pandemic disease threats. One of the current goals of TEXGHS is to coordinate existing resources in the Austin innovation ecosystem. If you are working to improve global health security or if you would like to partner to help provide resources or services to companies in need, let us know by completing our survey! Click here to complete the survey.

Changes to ISO 14971

ISO 14971, the standard of medical device risk management, was recently updated. This is relevant to all medical device manufacturers as a summary to understand the scope and nature of the many updates.

Texas Physicians Fortify NYC Frontlines

Doctors and their teams, including some from UT Dell Medical School, fly to NYC to volunteer on the frontlines of the COVID-19 pandemic assisting with thousands of patients.

Vaping, Opioids, COVID-19 A Triple Whammy

Studies have found that people that vape any substance and people with opioid use disorder are more likely to be high risk for COVID-19 complications due to lung damage and suppressed immune systems.

Across the Pond....

EU MDR Delay: How to Plan Beyond the Coronavirus Pandemic

April 17th, European Parliament voted to adopt the proposal to delay the date of application until May 26, 2021. This gives more flexibility for beginning clinical investigations and allows companies time to meet MDR regulations fully. Learn more about being proactive and strategic with these changes.

INDUSTRY RESOURCES & FUNDING OPPORTUNITIES

Temple Health & Bioscience District E-Learning

Watch THBD's E-Learning series webinars that feature industry speakers as a resource for entrepreneurs, startups, researchers, and health professionals. Access E-Learning Series Library here.

Texas Health Catalyst is accepting applications!

We initiated a soft launch of the 2020 TXHC cycle that started in late February. We're running things a bit differently this year -- there is no application deadline, and not all of our program participants will be on identical timelines. Instead, we'll be continuously "open for business", ready to provide translational support for research teams at all stages of project development, whenever our support can best be used.

We will continue to support as many teams as possible with our consulting and advising services. We plan to provide funding support for a maximum of 10 teams per year, however, so we encourage you to send in your 250-word application soon! Application: <https://tinyurl.com/ya42jahv>

WOMEN IN LIFE SCIENCE & WOMEN'S HEALTH

Women-Run Countries Faring Better Against Coronavirus... Why?

Countries such as Taiwan, Iceland, and New Zealand have been applauded for effective strategies against COVID-19. This article discusses leadership style in female vs. male leaders globally.

Inaccurate Cardiovascular Risk Assessments in Women

Primary prevention scores like the Atherosclerotic Cardiovascular Disease risk score and Adult Treatment Panel III are not accurately predicting CVD with ischemia and no obstructive CAD.

Yoga May Reduce Testosterone in Women with Polycystic Ovary Syndrome

Study has linked mindful yoga practice with lower testosterone levels in women with PCOS which can last several months and reduce anxiety and depression.

Oncofertility Expert Named Mich. State U. Provost

Teresa Woodruff was named provost of Michigan State. She advocates for women in science and also coined the term oncofertility as an expert in ovarian biology and reproductive science.

SPOTLIGHT

TMDA – Texas Medical Device Alliance

Founded in 2009 in Austin by Jack Hart, TMDA was established to provide support and outreach opportunities for the medical device industry, entrepreneurs, academia, hospital systems and the overall med tech community in Texas.

TMDA hosts quarterly meetings featuring service-oriented presentations, networking opportunities and offers sponsorships. Each critical segment of the medical device community is represented, including entrepreneurial- minded medical physicians, biotech industry personnel, life sciences academicians, investors, medical device service providers, manufacturers, IP attorneys and others. Presentations cover a wide range of topics, including:

- Product Design
- Animal Trials
- CE Mark
- Commercialization
- Equipment
- Product Prototyping
- Clinical Trials
- Funding
- Reimbursement
- Manufacturing
- Quality Assurance
- FDA
- Regulations
- Marketing/PR
- Facilities
- Product Distribution

CAREER CORNER

Seeking Opportunity

I am an audio engineer and special events coordinator for the Texas Senate seeking a career change. While working full time, I decided to go back to school and obtained my biology degree with a focus on the health profession. As an undergrad I did research on alpha-2-macroglobulin, mainly focusing on isolation and point-of-care. I am an excellent communicator and adaptable to working in a variety of experiences. I am a quick learner, most recently focusing my personal time studying data science programming and healthcare policy. I would like to leverage my wide skill set and government experience to switch to a more fulfilling career in biotech.
